Fee-collecting national parks

Search

Motor vehicle entry fees are charged at 45 of the more than 890 national parks and reserves in NSW. Find out which parks charge vehicle entry fees, and how much it costs when you visit.

This fee relates to motor vehicles, not to people, so you only need to pay for each motor vehicle you bring into the park (including motorbikes). If you ride a push bike or walk, entry is free.

You can buy single-day entry passes or, if you're a regular park visitor save time and money by buying an annual pass.

People planning a visit to national parks across NSW are urged to check for closures before heading out as conditions can change quickly.

The list below shows which parks charge motor vehicle entry fees, and how much they are per vehicle.

- Ku-ring-gai Chase National Park
- Lane Cove National Park
- Royal National Park
- Sydney Harbour National Park
- Thirlmere Lakes National Park

You will need an All Parks Pass to cover park entry fees for Kosciuszko National Park.

What fees are not covered by NPWS annual park passes?

NSW National Parks annual passes are valid for motor vehicle entry fees at up to 45 fee-collecting parks.

Annual passes do not include:

- Camping and accommodation fees
- Landing fees for Sydney Harbour National Park islands
- Landing fees at The Basin, Ku-ring-gai Chase National Park
- Mooring fees at Ku-ring-gai Chase National Park
- Entry to museums, visitor centres, rainforest centres, Discovery and education centres
- Fees for tours, events, activities and attractions in NSW national parks
- The Skitube in Kosciuszko National Park

Restrictions apply at the following locations:

- Restrictions apply in the Chowder Bay area of Sydney Harbour National Park. Read our FAQs for more information.
- Restrictions apply at the Cape Byron Lighthouse precinct of Cape Byron State Conservation Area. Read our FAQs for more information.

Annual passes do not cover vehicle entry fees at these NSW parks:

- Visitors to Worimi Conservation Lands will need to buy a Beach Vehicle Permit  before visiting.
- 3 areas in Oxley Wild Rivers National Park have day vehicle entry fees: Halls Peak campground, Riverside campground and picnic area, and Youdales campground and picnic area. Fees aren't applicable if you're paying camping fees at these locations.
- Bongil Bongil National Park requires a beach driving permit at Bongil Beach.
- Booderee National Park, at Jervis Bay, is managed jointly by the Wreck Bay Aboriginal Community and Parks Australia.

NSW National Parks annual passes do not cover entry fees to parks in the ACT or other Australian states and territories.

Please note

If you ride a bicycle or walk to your park, entry remains free.

Parks charging motor vehicle entry fees are generally those which receive many visitors. Your support, through entry fees, directly helps NSW National Parks to maintain and improve visitor facilities, conserve threatened species and their habitats, and protect sites of cultural significance.
